Dear Reader:

I am writing this as a letter of reference for applicant Emily Johnson. I have known Emily for the past year, during which time she volunteered two days every week to coach the goalkeepers on my under-13 girls soccer team.

Throughout the season, Emily was completely reliable, and could be counted-on to show up every day. She exuded a wonderful maturity and self-confidence, and provided our soccer players with a leadership that is unusual to see from such a young person.

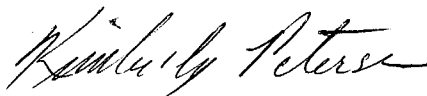

As a goalkeeper coach, Emily demonstrated strong communication skills, and was able to establish an immediate rapport with the players. She was able to articulate not only the mechanics of various drills, but also the subtleties of technical and tactical aspects.

When playing soccer herself, Emily's joy and love for the sport are apparent. Her incredibly competitive nature is also obvious; Emily is determined to play soccer at the highest level, and I have no doubt she will attain that goal. As a former Stanford player, and a former professional soccer player myself, I see the makings of a national-level competitor.

I believe that Emily will thrive in a high-level, collegiate soccer environment. I also believe that her self-discipline and determination will help her succeed in the academic arena as well. I hope to watch her someday wearing a U.S. National Team uniform, or competing in the College Cup.

Please feel free to call or write me if you wish to inquire further about candidate Emily Johnson.

Sincerely,

Kimberly Petersen
